Explore Arts. The journey starts at Carclew.

Carclew Youth Arts today launched Explore Arts, a new series of artistic workshops for young people aged 5-15, which is set to run during the April school holidays.

Explore Arts will provide Adelaide's young aspiring artists with the chance to fine-tune their skills in visual art, illustration, animation and flash computer graphics and will be offered from Wednesday 11 to Thursday 19 April.

With an all new format catering for working parents, children can attend individual or full day workshops or for the truly dedicated a three-day animation and pixilation workshop with award winning animator Jonathan Daw.

"Carclew offers a unique program of creative workshops to inspire, explore and encourage artistic talent in young South Australians," said Leah Fort, Carclew's Community Project Officer.

"As part of the program these holidays, we're excited to be offering two full-day workshops which are divided into three experiences, each with a focus on diverse cultural arts and craft," said Leah.

Leah added "Places fill quickly, so if you want to take part we suggest you book as soon as possible. Reduced prices are also available for families with a Government concession".
